

Imola Tenorio-Baigorria

Budai Campus

„A” building, 2nd floor

BSc in Horticulture, MSc in Horticulture and Plant Protection, PhD candidate

The aim of her research is to survey the different deciduous ornamental tree species and walnut trees in several locations of Hungary and identify the bacterial species that cause bark canker and bark disease on them.

- Identification of the pathogens by using traditional and molecular methods,
- Analysis of the relationship of the Hungarian isolates belonging to the genus Brenneria and comparison to the isolates available in the NCBI database.